A concert was given Wednesday afternoon at the First Baptist church, by representatives of the large music clubs of the town, including the Ladies' Music club, the Matinee Music Study and the Minerva club.

A few years ago the first of the annual union meetings was held under the auspices of the Ladies' Music club, and the event met with so much favor that it has come to be an institution in the music club life of the town. Each year a different sort of music is furnished the program. The affair not only furnishes a segment of interest in the season's musical affairs, but it brings home musicians before the local public, and it promotes a feeling of friendliness and mutual understanding among the members of the various clubs.

The program yesterday was made up of selections from each of the four clubs participating, and it was a program of special merit and interest. It was well favored with unusual numbers and was well away from the hackneyed and commonplace, and the selections represented some of the best things in modern music. There is much to be said in commendation, not only of the spirit that prompts the giving of the recital, but also of the taste displayed in the choice of the program.

Piano accompaniments for the solo numbers were played by Mrs. A. J. Wilson, Mrs. Ezra Clark, Miss Beatrice Clifton and Miss Hazel Wing. Mrs. Clark also played the organ accompaniment for the double violin number.

Miss Ethel Grant of the Music Study club played a double piano number. Miss Gladys Gable of the Matinee Music club gave two violin solos; Mrs. Robert Shoemaker of the Ladies' Music club sang two selections; Mrs. Charles Kleinhaus, pianist, and Mrs. Anna Clark, organist, both of the Ladies' Music club, played a piano and organ duet; Mrs. F. L. Richards, representing the Minerva club, gave a violin solo; Miss Euphemia Page of the Matinee Music club sang two short numbers; Mrs. I. W. Waynick of the Minerva club played a piano number; Miss Emma Remper of the Ladies' Music club gave a vocal solo, and the program was closed by a double number by the Music Study club trio, Mrs. F. A. Derby, harpist, Miss Gladys Gable, violinist, and Miss Phoebe Gaylord, cellist.

The firm of Beef & Bluff passed through Topeka last night. This time the company was made up of man and wife. Going to the President association, the woman told of how she was taking her "dying" wish to Kansas City. She glibly gave addresses of friends and relatives, never thinking that Louis Floyd, the secretary, was telephoning to Kansas City to verify her statements, all of which were false in regard to the relatives and their addresses, he said.

When called to account for her double dealing she snuffed haughtily and left at once. Mr. half of the woman and her hale and hearty husband in a chair car ready to leave for Kansas City. hands of Miss McGrane and Mr. Lynch, the leading players of the stock company. Matinee and evening performances will be given today, tomorrow and Saturday. "The Feathers" by Eugene Walters, who wrote "The Wolf," "Paid in Full" and "Bought and Paid For," will be the bill for next week, presented by the popular stock organization.

"The Henrietta."

William H. Crane, Thomas W. Ross, Madlyn Arbuckle, Amelia Bingham and Mabel Taliaferro, each a live and blazing factor in the same performance, is an announcement of good things in store for the hungry theatergoer that will bring good cheer around our "neighborhood." And to add to the cause for rejoicing, the play in which this famous group appears is Erson Howard's wonderful comedy, "The Henrietta," about which every mother's son of the last generation has heard enough in praise to make him itchy with curiosity. Almost any old play would find favor if rendered by these stars of the legitimate theater, and to witness them at their best, as the excellent parts in "The Henrietta" permit, is an opportunity that comes seldom in a lifetime. The presenting of this masterpiece at the Iris program, Tuesday, November 30, must be classed as one of the big events of the amusement season.

At the Iris.

Edna Goodrich in "Armstrong's Wife," the Lasky production that will be shown at the Iris today and tonight, has taken ill while serving as a nurse in the French Red Cross service and compelled to return to this country.

The thrilling experiences of the well known star while in the war zone, together with the illness, seriously affected the famous actress to the extent that when one particular act in the feature film requiring Miss Goodrich to fire a revolver, fifteen different photographs were taken in order to obtain the desired effect. Miss Goodrich was suffering from such a disorder of the nerves that every explosion threw her into a cringing panic.

A new feature of the Iris program is the "News Pictures," the latest production of the Paramount picture.

"Grandma, are you with the circus?" "Of course not, child. What makes you ask such a thing?" "I heard you say that when I was a little girl you had an elephant on your hands."—Baltimore American.
